

Our little grandson Julius turned one on Halloween. He is a delightful little boy and always laughing and smiling. He is so curious about everything and loves to press buttons of every sort. You can just see his little mind at work as he experiments with things to try to understand how they work. He is almost walking on his own, just needs a little more confidence.

Martin and I had a lovely two weeks vacation in Merry Olde England at the beginning of November. It had been four years since our last trip. We stayed at Cuckoo Tye with Peter and Elaine and spent as much time as possible with Sheila and her friend Michael too. Although we did a lot of things, it was a very relaxing time and we managed to spend three days in London. We saw two shows. The Story of Buddy Holly, which has been running in London for eighteen years was wonderful. We also visited the new Horse Guards Museum and the RAF Museum just outside London, as well as doing the duck sightseeing tour, part of which was on land and part of which was a tour down the Thames. AND, we visited the EMU Abbey Road Studio, something Martin had wanted to do for some time.

Anthony, Sharon, Julius and Linda (Sharon's Mum) came down to Texas for Thanksgiving. They spent a few days in the Houston area with Anthony's relatives and then came on to us. It was so wonderful having them here, but the time went very quickly. The time also coincided with Anthony and Sharon's third wedding anniversary, so reason for double celebrations.

We will be having some neighbors and Ken over for Christmas Day. We'll have a traditional English Xmas Dinner, complete with turkey, bread sauce and, of course, Christmas pudding.

*Take care of each other and we hope you have a Wonderful Holiday Season.
Love, Martin and Chris*
