TWIN ENGINE ADVANCED PILOT TRAINING SCHOOL
MARFA, TEXAS

DEDICATION

In this graduating class some five hundred of us are now flying officers of the Army of the United States. A little over a year ago this group started with a few over six hundred. We are all eager young men—a cross section of American youth chosen carefully by examining boards. We all looked forward to this day we are now celebrating. About a hundred of us are not here. Sincere fellows looking to and working toward this day dropped, one by one, along the wayside, through no fault of their own, but just because they lacked some little characteristic Uncle Sam knows each successful Army airman must have. These men are doing their part in some ground phase of the war, but their hearts are still with us in the skys.

To these men we sincerely and respectfully dedicate this, the 44-E graduating classbook.

A MESSAGE FROM THE COMMANDING OFFICER

To the Graduates of Class 44-E:

You have at last won your place in the great brotherhood of those who wear the silver wings. We at Marfa helped you to win that place. We have given you our best.

Most of you now move on to the test of all our work—the destruction of our enemies. We who must remain behind salute you.

Represent us well—Graduates of Marfa!

CAPTAIN R. H. HEILPERN

MAJOR S. J. JOHNSON
Inspector

Probably no two men on the post are so inconspicuous to the Cadets themselves, and still have such a great bearing on the life and training at Marfa, as the Air Inspectors. We do not refer to the annual inspection that occurred a few weeks ago—that was a West Coast Headquarters inspection. We refer to the work done daily by Major S. J. Johnson and Captain H. B. Baird. These men see to it that our equipment, flying and ground, is the best obtainable, and always in top condition. They check frequently to see that our food and housing is up to standard. They check the flying and ground instructors to be sure our training is standardized. In short, they are responsible for the entire field—individual duties far too numerous to mention.

MAJOR ELDON W. BRUMMETT
Commandant of Cadets

MAJOR LADISLAUS KLOHS, JR.
Director Planning and Training

Perhaps this classbook is unique in that it is unusual to present two Commandants of Cadets. Major Eldon W. Brummett became our Commandant on 28 April 1944. Prior to his recent assignment, Major Brummett was Post Adjutant at Marfa.

Major Ladislaus Klohs, Jr., former Commandant of Cadets, has taken over new duties in Post Headquarters as S-3 officer in charge of Plans and Training. His new work consists of general supervision and planning of all activity on the post, particularly that concerning all phases of training.

The class wishes Major Klohs well in his new work, and welcomes Major Brummett to his new command.

TACTICAL OFFICERS

1st Lt. Kenneth P. Hill, Chief Tactical Officer, assisted by 2nd Lts. M. F. Miller, W. M. Siebel, and recently added to the staff, S. Frankel, are the boys who are responsible for our meeting reveille formation, maintaining a semblance of order on the mess line, and keeping our barracks in "Inspection Order." Actually their job is to keep us on the ball, and doing the things we more particularly don't like doing. We'll all admit, though, that they're a pretty swell bunch of men, and while we may refer uncomplimentary adjectives to them occasionally, we realize the importance of their work in instilling in us the necessary military bearing and alertness.

THEY MAKE US OFFICERS

1ST LT. HOMER W. LUDLOW

Perhaps you wonder just how these men are responsible for making us officers. True, all persons connected with our training these past twelve or fourteen months have helped. But Lt. F. G. Ludlow is the man that finally signs the paper that does the trick. He is the man that administers to us the oath of office as commissioned or appointed officers of the Air Corps, Army of the United States. It really takes a lot of book work to transform an aviation cadet from an enlisted status to that of an officer. Lt. Ludlow and his staff in the School Secretary's office have been working on this transformation ever since the first day we arrived at MAAF.

Some of the more proud of us won't admit it, but a lot of the reward for our hard year's work is in going home to the family and friends to "show off" the uniform, bars, and wings. To make this homecoming more pleasant still, Lt. Apter and the Public Relations staff have paved the road for us in the home town with a story and picture of us in the local newspaper. The Public Relations office also has charge of, and publishes, Marfacts, is most helpful in the publication of the classbook, together with all sorts of publicity and news of training and activities at MAAF.

2ND LT. DAVID APTER

RELIGIOUS GUIDANCE

One of the most beautifully appointed buildings on the post is the Chapel. Outside it gives the same appearance as the other temporary buildings, but inside the friendly, warm, informal atmosphere created by Chaplains Richerdson and Dirks is very conducive to attendance.

Chaplain William R. Richerdson, recently replacing Chaplain Herman Dirks who is now stationed in Yuma, Ariz., is a Methodist minister, a native of Mississippi. Prior to his enlistment, July 1942, Chaplain Richerdson served as pastor to the Methodist congregation in Macon, Mississippi, and since then he has had fifteen months service in Alaska and the Aleutians.

CAPT. JOHN C. HAYGOOD

1ST LT. ROBT C. HOAGLAND

Captain John G. Haygood, commanding the recently formed Group III (Instrument Squadron), has very successfully carried out the most difficult and one of the most important phases of cadets training. For one month one flight of the instrument squadron is assigned to work with each transition squadron. The last week of that month is taken in giving the 50-3 instrument checks. Capt Haygood's group is independent and works separately, but in conjunction with, the transition squadrons.

1st Lt. Robert Hoagland, assisted by 1st Lt. N. S. Davis, operates the link trainer department at MAAF. At present fifty-six men work from 0600 to 2400 in operation of twenty trainers. Of these men four have attended the instrument school at Bryan, Texas, and three more are now in attendance there. The instrument department also maintains its instructors' school at Marfa to standarize and instruct constantly all those training cadets.

Many persons on the Field have been extremely helpful in the publication of this Classbook. To the many officers who have cooperated so splendidly in many ways we offer our most sincere thanks. To Corporal H. M. Eastwood in charge of Base Photography also goes our appreciation for the best sort of cooperation and long hours of work in taking, developing and printing the many pictures in our book.
